“armcor.com clients can now choose between three basic pricing formulae,” says armcor.com CEO John Fedewa. “If they have a lot of variation in the dollar amounts of their invoices, they might prefer to have factoring fees for each invoice priced according to a sliding scale. If they frequently will have a lot of factoring volume, they might decide to go with a plan that prices along a curve according to actual monthly billings. And, of course, the original single rate plan is still available.”

As before, all plans share armcor.com’s unique flat-rate policy—which means that fees are never retroactively adjusted to pay for slow collections.
